Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 1-22 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter. The invention comprises a method and apparatus for attenuation in an input signal comprising: receiving an input signal; communicating a first, second, and third portion of the input signal on a first, second, and third path, respectively. The method and apparatus also includes applying a first gain to the first portion of the input signal, applying a first-order mathematical operation and a second gain to the second portion of the input signal, and applying a second-order mathematical operation and an third gain to the portion of the input signal, and recombining the first, second, and third processed signal into an output signal. The apparatus also comprises an output monitor operable to monitor inter-symbol-interference in the output signal; an adaptive controller coupled to the output monitor operable to adjust one or more of the gains in response to the inter-symbol-interference detected by the output monitor, wherein the adaptive controller controls each of the gains by adjusting a bias current applied to the respective amplifier; and a drive amplifier operable to amplify the output signal and to communicate the output signal to a next destination. The cited prior arts fail to teach applying a first-order mathematical operation and a second gain to the second portion of the input signal, and applying a second-order mathematical operation and an third gain to the portion of the input signal; recombining the first, second, and third processed signal into an output signal; an output monitor operable to monitor inter-symbol-interference in the output signal; an adaptive controller coupled to the output monitor operable to adjust one or more of the gains in response to the inter-symbol-interference detected by the output monitor, wherein the adaptive controller controls each of the gains by adjusting a bias current applied to the respective amplifier; and a drive amplifier operable to amplify the output signal and to communicate the output signal to a next destination.
